

Discover The Salani

The Salani is simple yet functional in design and positively bridges the gap between architectural homes and the project market. The design concept stems from the traditional Pacific Island Bungalow with pitched ceilings and open plan living. The home showcases a mix of classic materials and features clean and natural design elements which compliments the homes coastal environment. The lifestyle orientated home achieves maximum energy efficiency on a low budget affording immediate cost savings and the benefits of sustainable living which provides the ultimate eco-friendly environment for your family. Designed for enjoyment, the home features weatherboard cladding, VJ Lined feature walls, external window and door picture framing and natural timber joinery in the kitchen and bathrooms. The functional “L” shape home captures the north easterly breezes naturally and flows throughout the home flushing out the stale air whilst ample roof space accommodates solar photovoltaic’s which reduces energy consumption. The open plan design allows seamless interaction between the internal living and external entertaining areas with the added benefit of allowing natural light to penetrate through the poly carbonate pergola to the polished concrete floors that provides warmth to the home. With zoned living and service quarters and a master wing with access to a private patio, the Salani offers family members a place to retreat in private or enjoy the sunshine together.
