

Discover The Namotu

You would be forgiven for not immediately identifying the entrance to this contemporary home. The design intent is purposefully deceptive so that the garage and entrance doors smoothly integrate into the front façade causing it to disappear from your immediate line of sight. The bold frontage to the street frames the passage that has been set back to further disguise the entrance which unexpectedly leads you to an internal garden and entry breezeway constructed of natural timber. Spectacular raked ceilings support design flexibly and afford a variety of family living options. With minimal changes to the external structure of the home the plans can be easily customized to accommodate a second level loft suspended above half the house, overlooking the kitchen and dining areas. The alfresco Deck immediately adjoins the lounge, dining and kitchen which combines the indoor and outdoor living areas and maximizes the homes entertaining and living space. The footprint of the home permits perfect symmetry to the front and rear elevations and is one of the most important elements for providing balance and comfort to the home.
