

DISCOVER THE EARTH

The elongated single storey layout opens the lungs of this home to optimum airflow and grounds its heart to the earth beneath. Inhabitants of The Earth will centralise their lifestyle around the main living space which is bordered with large sliding doors foreseeing a seamless transition to the exterior timber decking, the perfect environment for entertaining family and guests. The main living space is entirely coated with stunning polished concrete flooring to aid in natural thermal mass production, which uses natural heating and cooling technology to control the temperature of the home. The design of the home provides ample outdoor space which in future allows a promising positing for a future pool. On the North side a sun deck has been positioned to capture the optimal amount of sun. It is protected during the warmer parts of the day in summer by a shelter supported with exposed exterior beams and a high cathedral ceiling, and invites the low-rise of the sun's rays during winter to seep through. This home specially features a private nook area that overlooks the Western landscape, ideal for underwinding and reading a book while still staying connected to the main living area. There is an additional office space and media room which can be fitted to the lifestyle of the occupants. On the opposing wing is the spacious master bedroom featuring a stunning ensuite with freestanding bathtub and the luxury of a walk-in robe, and an additional two bedrooms are positioned adjacent to one another.
